SALEM CHAPTER No. 1

Greetings, Gates! Here we are again, pushing against that old time schedule.

Well, the picnic held last year proved such a success, that everyone called for an "encore," and lo and behold the voice of the people was heard and once again the clamoring, hungry horde invaded the environs of the City of Dallas. The date—July 21, and as was expected, in the aftermath of the spirited inter-departmental softball games held at the Dallas ball park during the afternoon, many a would-be athlete was limping around the halls as a result of the mistaken belief that he was still as young as he once was. All in all, a great time was had by all those in attendance. (This year we didn't forget those swim trunks.)

At the June meeting, "Buck" De France gave a brief resume of his and Jim McFarland's trip to Sacramento, California, where they attended the Western Regional Conference of Civil Service Assembly. "Buck's" talk was of particular interest at this time, as we are going through the throes of re-classification. "Buck" also informs us that it rains in California. Tsk! Tsk!

We noticed during the meeting that E. G. Ricketts (Rick) is becoming quite proficient in the art of "doodling."

Toward the close of the meeting, the attending members enjoyed the colored slides taken by Ray Webber on his tour of duty while a member of the U. S. Naval forces, showing scenes taken in the Aleutians, Hawaiian and Philippine Islands, and in the Admiralty group. The only thing lacking was the presence of Ray himself to give us a little of the background of each shot, but he was called out to take a visiting French engineer around the state and show him how we do things in Oregon. However, Mrs. Webber came down and did a good job of pinch-hitting in Ray's place. Joe Weber kept waiting for some scenes showing those beauteous south sea island belles, but, like a lot of "GI Joes," decided Hollywood did better by the islands.
