

Dalles, on May 25. A short business session was held, with most business matters laid on the shelf till a later date.

The entertainment committee fell by the wayside this time, but we did have a good feed put on by Parkdale. The main dish was baked beans, which were perfection plus.

The main activity in this neck of the woods is patching, then more patching. Art Burt's oil crew sprayed a spot or two for Maupin and Dufur sections.

J. E. Peck (a prospective member?) has been spending quite a bit of his liesure time lately in the vicinity of Tygh Valley, where he is suspected of opening the trout season a few days before the game commission's approval, which procedure is very embarrassing to his very dear friend, Mr. Dow, the game warden in that vicinity. (Dow: I always blamed those large Dolly Vardens for getting all the three and four-inch trout in Tygh Creek, but now I know where they have been going.)

Our June 22 meeting was quite an affair. We started the ball rolling with a dinner prepared by Mrs. Hinkle and helpers of The Dalles, which was enjoyed by some 59 souls. A singing bee followed, with Mrs. Slaybaugh as leader, and Mrs. Stratton playing the piano.

Believe it or not, we were in fine voice.

Charlie Slaybaugh, M.C., introduced the speakers of the evening—Floyd Query, state president, O.S.E.A., and Forrest Stewart, executive secretary, O.S.E.A., who gave very interesting talks. They left themselves wide open, when they agreed to try and answer all questions. Along about the fourth round, Floyd was on the ropes. Anyway, we had a good time and hope to have Floyd and Forrest with us again.

If you want to see a human being give a good imitation of a contented cat purring, just set a bait of baked beans in front of Forrest Stewart.

Gus Weigelt of Weigelt Brothers Book and Stationery Store, The Dalles, gave a sleight of hand performance with playing cards, which was enjoyed by all.

A short business session was held, mainly election of officers. Harvey McClain was re-elected president, and Lowell Stratton, secretary-treasurer. Paul Stout, Parkdale, was elected vice president.
