

have worked in the state shop from 10 to 25 years or more, as well as several new members recently discharged from the military forces.

Among veterans who have returned to their positions in the printing shop is Composing Room Foreman Chas. L. Unruh, who served in both world wars. Leaving with the O.N.G., Unruh was stationed at Fort Stevens the past four years.

Harvey Wahlgren—binderyman first, golfer par-excellent second, has returned after a long period of service with the Navy in the South Pacific.

"Woody" Van Woert, with the state shop previous to service in the naval construction seabee units in the Pacific areas, is back and has taken up work as junior apprentice.

Jerry Hansen, for many years one of the experts in the composing room, has returned from the Pacific theater, where he spent long months in India. His later service followed a period of Army duty in Africa.

Allen D. Knight several months ago signed on as a linotype operator, after seeing the world as a member of the Navy in the Pacific theater.

Roger Quackenbush, Salem boy of basketball fame, is now employed in the stockrooms. Roger saw many months of duty in the Pacific theaters with the 6th and 8th armies.

Phil Jaskoski, Jr., is numbered among the newly employed vets in the bindery department. Phil was in Uncle Sam's Navy and saw service in the Southwest Pacific.
