

the able leadership of President "Ike" Southwick, we are very much alive and expect to make ourselves heard.

We have had two enthusiastic meetings; one in November at which time there were approximately twenty-five members present, and one in December at which there were more than fifty present. At our December meeting we uncovered considerable musical talent and were ably entertained by Bud Malin with some of his famous Swede dialect stories. At our November meeting a complete new set of by-laws was adopted and President "Ike" can expect to be called to task if he does not follow them explicitly. We have several parliamentarians who are always looking for a chance to correct the presiding officer.

At our December meeting, Mr. L. R. White, secretary-treasurer of the State organization, gave us an able resume and interpretation of proposed changes in the laws and acts governing State employees.

As a stimulus to attendance, we have instituted the drawing of a jack-pot at each meeting and up to date there have been no winners. At our meeting to be held January 14, the drawing will continue until a winner is pulled out of the hat. It is expected that approximately $10.00 will be in the jack-pot, one-half of which will go to the member whose lucky number is pulled out of the hat and one-half to our entertainment fund.

We suggest that after you have read this issue of the magazine you pass it on to a non-member of the State Employees' Association and accompany it with a sales talk as to why they should also belong.
