

ball and see what the boys have been doing.

Clyde Gilmore was reported standing on a high hump on the edge of the Sherman County bad lands looking intently to the west. He must have been trying to out-guess the weather man.

Frank Forbes and company are chomping at the bit, thinking about firing up the old oil kettle.

Jimmy Robertson and Hank Wilson have come in out of the Shaniko waste lands. Both are looking well.

The Dufur crew put in a short session getting the foundation ready for the new maintenance shed. DeJoode and crew dropped anchor and assembled the building.

Johnny Kirgel, office man "Deluxe,"—floor polishing a specialty. Lynn Koons is doing his shaving at the office these days, as his mirrors at home are weak in comparison with Johnny's floors.

Loyd (Funny) Taylor and his shovel put in a hitch at Rufus on slides for McClain.

Ernie Johnston and his gang have been building shoulders and blading, east of The Dalles. Good looking job, Ernie.

Pink Andrews and his fishermen have been seen practicing casting. It is reported they have taken to mumbling in their sleep—must be something they "et."

Col. Peck and his chain draggers and stake drivers have had a busy time this winter keeping pickets ahead of the contractor on the Shearer's Bridge Section.

We understand that Paul Stoutt is quite a fisherman in his own right. For further information, contact the Game Commission. Paul now has a new hobby. Last winter he was playing around on a pair of barrel staves and ran his head into a manzanita bush—broken glasses, skinned nose, and a black eye. This winter, as he was imitating a flying squirrel on the slopes of Mt. Hood, he made a barrel roll and now has one leg in a plaster cast.

COQUILLE CHAPTER No. 10

The January meeting of Coquille Chapter No. 10 was held in Port Orford, with a fair attendance. Two carloads attended from Coquille and one from Bandon.

Our new president, Leroy Tucker; and new secretary, Frank McClure; got off to a good start for 1947. Mr. Tucker is an employee at the State Trout Hatchery at Bandon and Mr. McClure is office assistant to W. G. Krueger of the bridge department.

One new member was taken in from the Coquille maintenance crew—Edgar Gould. However, by the time this item is printed he will have left state employment due to the low pay scale.

Port Orford members served the refreshments, which were enjoyed by all present.

Our February meeting was held in Coquille, with a very good attendance. Irwin Clark, past director, and his
