

July 1. Benjamin Harrison of the tabulating section was named to take the position. The chapter is in good financial shape and is planning several activities for the fall months.

AGRICULTURAL CHAPTER No. 26

The Oregon State Employees Association may almost wager its bottom two bits that a fine group of new members will roll into Agricultural chapter, as the result of a few pep talks which shipping point supervisors of the state department of agriculture heard at their semi-annual meeting in May. The two-day session was held in central Oregon, with Ben Davidson, Ag chapter member of Redmond, making the local arrangements.

Forrest Cooper of Bend, director of O.S.E.A., gave the supervisors an excellent talk on the history, organization and functions of O. S.E.A.—and did a mighty fine job of putting the organization across. Then Hugh Taylor, president of Ag chapter, urged that all the field men in shipping point come into this chapter, but attend meetings nearest their home base. He urged supervisors to get their men interested in helping an organization that is helping them, rather than being content merely to ride on the coat tails of those financing the program.

And to top both those pep talks, Melvin Cleveland, of Civil Service, spoke at length on the Oregon civil service set-up and answered a lot of questions.
