

Colman Commends OSEA; Civil Service Head to Be Named

William G. Colman, whose activities as director of civil service have contributed greatly to the successful inauguration of civil service in Oregon's State government, has left state service. Oregon has been fortunate in having had the benefit of Mr. Colman's ability and understanding in the important formulative stages of our civil service. He has performed a creditable job with patience, tact and unimpeachable integrity.

Upon leaving, Mr. Colman expressed his appreciation of the O.S.E.A. in the following letter addressed to our Executive Secretary, Forrest Stewart. It is apparent that Mr. Stewart has performed his duties well to merit the praise contained therein, and the O.S.E.A. can justly be proud of its record to date. Mr. Colman's letter follows:

March 21, 1947

Dear Mr. Stewart:

As you know, my services with the

Oregon State Civil Service Commission are being terminated. In leaving, I would like to present certain personal observations regarding the role which the State Employees Association is playing with respect to personnel administration in the state service. Comments in this letter are based on my observations during the past year and they are presented as representing my personal views and not necessarily those of the Civil Service Commission.

It is indisputable and perfectly ap-
