

its work on the Lower Columbia, and in the Astoria section. They are now working out of Jewell, where considerable work is necessary due to logging operations.

LeRoy Boldt's maintenance crew from Astoria and John A. Hower's maintenance crew from Mist, have combined with John Thomas' crew at Jewell, in the last month, to maintenance patch ahead of Skinner's paving crew.

It may be of interest to know that logging operations in the Walluski area necessitated the opening of the Walluski bridge, which is manually operated, an average of once daily.

Elvin English, operator on Youngs Bay bridge, spent a few days in the Saint Mary's hospital, with the flu. However, Elvin is back on the job again.

Clarence Asher left on his 1947 vacation on May 29. Clarence headed for Spray, eastern Oregon, where his mother lives. Prior to starting his vacation, we do know some facts about Clarence!

We do know that Clarence purchased a new 30 calibre carbine.

We do know Clarence needed practice with his new rifle.

We do know Clarence loves hunting.
We do know Clarence likes meat.

We do know the hunting season isn't open here, but there is considerable wild game in eastern Oregon.

And in conclusion, we do hope that

Clarence and his family had a wonderful vacation.

Jess Hathaway, after purchasing a new Fleetline Chevrolet car, left for an extended vacation on the east coast, taking his mother with him. Later reports received are that Jess has returned and that he enjoyed his trip immensely.

THE DALLES CHAPTER No. 9

The wee gee board is all polished up and raring to go, but first a bit about the big meeting we just finished.

Election of new officers was on the ticket. In order to get the speaker of the evening, Forrest Stewart, on his feet as soon as possible, some fancy nominating and voting took place, and I mean fancy. Here they are:
