

engineers want to know if there are any more one hundred percenters.

This one isn't so clear, something about a mowing machine parts book. The answer is the hogs ate it, wotta know.

Lynn Koons, while making a study of the bees and the flowers, was stung by a pugnacious yellow jacket. His right arm was about the size of a young phone pole.

Santa Claus came early to Hood River, stopped at Pink Andrews house, and gave them a week at the beach.

The boys at Moro are a thrifty bunch. They sold beer bottles which they had gathered up along the highway and bought an electric drill. They have their sights set a little higher now—hope to pick up enough beer bottles and hub caps to purchase a scoopmobile.

SUCCESS CHAPTER No. 30

Farewells were said recently by June Hoskinson, Milo Emel, Bernice Lind and Norine Morris, all of the unemployment compensation office staff on S.W. 12th and Stark streets. June is attending Oregon State college, Milo has entered the University of Oregon, Bernice is also registered at U. of O., and Norine is now a student at Oregon State. Best of luck, kids! We hope to see you again next summer!

Congratulations to Terry Dolan of the G.I. adjustment unit. Seems that Terry, a handsome fellow, went out and picked himself a beautiful girl by the name of Pat Sweeney. They were married August 16 in the Church of the Immaculate Heart. All the boys and girls here wish them the best of everything as they travel down the road of life together.

The unemployment compensation office was thrown into consternation the other day when ye scribe was seen to reach in his coat pocket and pull out
