

employment, exercised his option, and had his benefits computed. In such case a separation notice, Form RS-A20, shall be executed, and thereafter no contributions in his behalf will be accepted by the Public Employees Retirement Board, nor will any retirement allowance accrue thereafter to the said official so long as he retains the office to which he was elected, reelected, appointed or reappointed, after having reached his compulsory retirement age. None of the rights established at the end of the term of office during which he reached retirement age shall be forfeited and any monthly retirement allowance which would have been due him at that time shall begin to be paid to him whenever he ceases to be on the payroll in any capacity of any participating public employer. In no case shall such official or his beneficiary be entitled to any retirement allowance for any period during which he receives compensation as an officer or employe of any participating public employer.

Rule No. 34. A person who has terminated his public employment and withdrawn the amount credited to him and who re-enters the service of any participating employer within five years of the date of his previous termination, may repay the amount previously withdrawn at any time during the six months immediately following the date of his re-employment, and the effective date of the reinstatement of his membership shall be the first day of the pay period following the date of repayment, of the amount withdrawn. Thereafter employe and employer contributions to the Retirement Fund shall be required.
