

Highway 99 is just 600 feet from the ski area.

An unusual attraction is centered about the "sky window," adjacent to the coffee cabin, offering an outstanding scenic picture through an oblong forest opening, looking toward high Mt. Ashland across thousands of acres of forest lands. The ski area is operated as a picnic area in summer time.

A cleared practice slide, 200 feet wide and 300 feet long, is offered at Union creek in Rogue River national forest, Karl L. Janouch, forest supervisor, reports. The ski area, 20 miles from Crater Lake national park on the west entrance road, also provides a large warming shelter with tables and a fireplace. Lodging is available at Union Creek resort and meals at Beckie's Cafe on weekends only. The forest parking area has space for 100 cars.

Information supplied by the U.S. forest service regional office at Portland reveals that the Warner Canyon ski area in Fremont national forest, on State highway 431, ten miles from Lakeview, offers a ski shelter and a 1000 foot rope tow with a 200 foot rise. The season extends from November through March.
