

Is Your Husband In Business For Himself?

If your husband is working on salary or engaged in a profession, you probably do not need to know much about his business affairs—what goes on at the office. But if he is an independent businessman, owning his own business, much of his personal estate may be tied up in the goodwill and reputation of the business. Those assets would be lost if the business were to lapse for any length of time. So perhaps you should be prepared to step in.

You should know whom he deals with, what commitments he has in the way of leases and contracts. If he is in a partnership, does he have a prearranged agreement whereby his partner will buy his interest in the business?

Could You Get Cash In an Emergency?

Someday you may need money for hospital bills, estate taxes or other expenses. Has some method been worked out so that you could get cash immediately?

Where Are Records And Papers Kept?

Know the location of life insurance policies, stocks, birth records, deeds, etc. They should be kept in one place, preferably a safe deposit box.

Is Your Family A Real Partnership?

A family is a sort of enterprise engaged in the business of living. Each of you—you and your husband—heads a department. But in modern companies, an executive must have a well-rounded knowledge of the whole business. If your family is to continue to function smoothly through every emergency, you must know a good deal about your husband's financial affairs.
