

Ruth Rawlings, Bert Simpson and Zelma Sweeney.

Officers for the chapter for next year will be elected at this meeting.

The highway department recently lost one of its oldest employees in point of service in the death of N. M. Finkbiner, after a short illness. He was first employed as highway chemist on October 1, 1919, and was head of the materials department for many years.

Bert Simpson, who suffered a heart attack several weeks ago, is now home from the hospital and expects to be on the job again in another month.

Russell Mudd became ill and was hospitalized on Monday, October 9.

To date seventy-eight on highway men have been "tagged" for military services, causing a re-shuffling of workers and the work load in many departments and new employees in many instances.
