

OSEA holds membership drive following election at UO Health Sciences Center

Employee Representative Pete DeLuca explained advantages of OSEA membership to Debbie Elliott, left, and Jane Laursen, secretaries in the Department of Neurology. Both women voted for OSEA in the recent runoff election.

Ona Kammerer, a cook in the kitchen of University Hospital South, was re-enrolled by Employee Representative Harry Ward. She previously was a member of OSEA for 8½ years, but dropped her membership when she left state employment.

Kathy Nuckols, a clerical specialist in the Dental School, was enrolled by Employee Representative Jack Schoonover. Her father, Bill Nuckols, is a longtime member of OSEA and currently president of Woodburn Chapter 45.

The services OSEA offers to state employees were outlined by Employee Representative Paula Chinn to Eugene J. Hinz, Dave M. Larson and Walter E. Hubble. All three men work in the Technical Services Department.

Robin Riddle, a clerical assistant in the Printing Department, was enrolled by Employee Representative Paula Chinn. Her husband, Bruce Riddle, who works in the Out Patient Clinic, also plans to join OSEA.
