ABOUT TAX REVOLT in both California and Oregon. On page 3 and 4 are several stories about the effects of the passage of Proposition 13 in California and what's happening in Oregon regarding a similar property tax limitation measure, called the Whittenberg amendment. On page 12, in a lighter vein, is an editorial-questionnaire which asks the question, what are you, as public employees, willing to lose?

ABOUT WORKLOADS in Adult and Family Services. A story on page 11 tells how eight OSEA members and staffers went to top management in the agency to outline what sort of physical and emotional damage the huge workloads are doing to the workers as well as to the clients.

A COMMUNICATION FROM HILLCREST OSEA leaders to the rank and file membership also is on page 11. We felt this memo outlined the issues presently facing the Association so well that we wanted to share it with the entire membership.

ABOUT A COMMITTEE THAT WORKED. Employees in the Oregon Liquor Control Commission (OLCC) had a lot of problems to deal with as their agency was being reorganized. They formed a committee of the membership to solve the problems. The solutions, then, were presented to management and, as it turns out, everyone was happy and has had a role in their own destiny. See how it's done on page 10.

THE LANDLORD'S OBLIGATIONS to his tenants in the second of a multi-part "Consumer Notes" series on the landlord-tenant law by OSEA Legal Researcher Bromleigh Lamb. Page 9.

OF THE ACTIONS TAKEN by the OSEA Board of Directors at its meeting June 24 in Salem. "Board Briefs" is on page 9.

OSEA Employee Representative Peter De Luca makes a monthly swing through Eastern Oregon to service the membership in this beautiful region.

The story of his roadtrip is on pages 5, 6, 7 and 8.
