

Holding Legislators Accountable

Legislators were graded based on their support for SEIU issues over the session. Higher grades were given out for legislators that championed issues by introducing the bills, testifying in support, and pushing their fellow legislators. The grades were based on their support for the following issues:

Workers' Rights

For the first time in over a decade, legislators passed proactive, positive legislation for workers. This session provided for the largest expansion of bargaining rights since 1973, expanding rights for public employees, childcare, and adult foster care workers. Legislators were graded on how they voted on;

- ▲ expanding bargaining rights,
- ▲ PERS legislation that would allow for a break-in service,
- ▲ expanding the Oregon Family Medical Leave Act,
- ▲ workers' compensation for homecare workers,
- ▲ safety as a bargaining issue for non-strikeable employees,
- ▲ and more.

There were over 18 votes taken on workers' rights issues in the House of Representatives.

Quality Public Services

Throughout the session we fought to make sure that workers could provide the quality public services Oregonians need. From fighting for additional funding for universities and the Department of Justice, to stopping unfunded mandates at the DMV, we had to make sure that there were resources to fund the work the state needs done. Legislators were graded on how they voted on issues such as;

- ▲ sending the corporate excess income tax to a rainy day fund to protect us from a recession,
- ▲ repealing the double majority to ensure that local governments can pass necessary property tax changes,
- ▲ strengthening laws so that corporations can't evade paying their taxes,
- ▲ and more.
