EUGENE, OREGON

Eight delegates, representing the eight colleges in the Intercollegiate Oratorical Association, met at Monmouth on Saturday afternoon for the purpose of selecting judges for the coming contest in March. The delegates were as follows: Pacific College, John L. Wright; McMinnville College, Henry Y. Knott; Albany College, Wm. P. Neal; Oregon Agricultural College, Peter I. Lockwood; Willamette University, Walter R. Wilson; Pacific University, Sam Lawrence; Oregon State Normal School, Virgil Goode; University of Oregon, Thos. R. Townsend.

The Oregon Monthly has placed a copy box in Villard Hall for the reception of literary contributions. Anyone having a story, a treatise, an essay, a joke, a poem, a bit of verse, a drawing, or anything else available for use in the Monthly, may drop it into this receptacle. Contributions need not be signed. Copy will be returned if desired. Short stories and bits of verse are especially acceptable.

Perhaps few students have borne in mind that the Bennet prize is still offered at the University of Oregon for the best essay discussing the principles of free government. In 1906, the prize was won by Edward Doak Jasper; in 1907, the first honors were won by Wilson C. Nicholas.

No meeting of the Engineers' Club will be held until after examinations.
