John Rigsby, captain of Whitman's basket ball team, will also be captain of the 1908 baseball team.

Washington is the only university in the Northwest which does not play intercollegiate basket ball.

Whitman College and the University of Washington have girls' glee clubs. It's about time the old Oregon "Treble Clef" should be re-organized.

The Pacific Wave, published by the students of the University of Washington, has had a rapid exchange of editors. Three men have held the position so far this year,—John W. Campbell, who resigned January 1; Harold Birkett was then elected, but he also resigned in two weeks; G. L. Spirk, an old Washington debater now handles the executive pen on the staff. Notwithstanding all the changes, the Wave still maintains its high standard.

It should be a source of pride to University of Oregon students to support such a publication as the Oregon Monthly. All along the Coast, much favorable mention has been heard on the paper. The December and January elicited much favorable comment.

The Technical World, published by the Carnegie Institute at Pittsburg, Penn., only last week published an account of the O. A. C. hazing incident which occurred at Corvallis last September. Rather behind the times for a Pittsburg publication.

Why not make a sensation of goodness? ask some of the recent editorial writers of such magazines as the Century and the Circle. Well, in that connection, what's the matter with Oregon? Here's William M. Ladd, who, on a purely moral idea, places himself underneath a bankrupt institution and agrees to make up the losses of some thousands of depositors, for whose misfortunes he is in no way responsible.

And here's President Campbell, of the University of Oregon, telling us that the whole faculty has been serving for months without pay in order to close the year without deficit.—The Spectator.

Minne-ha-ha is the name of a new joker magazine at Minnesota. Only college humor is used in it. The heading of the editorial page is "Anvil Chorus," and under it follows one continual string of biting sarcasm with plenty of fiction to make it interesting.

Track work for the annual winter meet has just begun at Minnesota.

At Nankin, China, a field day was recently held, in which seven thousand students from 81 institutions participated in seventy events.

The faculty of Northwestern University recently voted that no freshman may join a fraternity until after he has secured credit for at least ten hours work.

Pennsylvania has started a library of the books written by graduates of that institution.

Harvard University has established this year twenty-five scholarships for students in the graduate school. The scholarships amount to $150 each, and are to be given to this year's seniors at Harvard and other institutions. The new feature is that the scholarships will be awarded according to the geographical distribution of the colleges and universities.

Football Schedule.

Next year Eugene people will have the opportunity of witnessing at least two intercollegiate football contests. On October, 10, 17, and 24 practice games will be played in Eugene with small colleges, probably Whitworth and Pacific. A freshman game with O. A. C. will take the other date.

On October 31, the Oregon eleven will go to Moscow to play the University of Idaho men. On November 7, there will be no game. On November 14, Oregon will meet Washington in Eugene. On November 21, the big game with O. A. C. will take place in Portland. The last game of the season will be played in Portland on Thanksgiving Day with the Multnomah club.

News of Dr. Shafer

Prof. E. E. DeCou is in receipt of a letter from Prof. Jos. Shafer, of the Department of History, who is in England doing research work. Prof. Shafer speaks very interesting of his surroundings, of his impressions, and particularly of the characteristics of the British people. He notes especially the spirit of leisure which seems to pervade the whole of England. In business life, in home life, in conversation, in walking, in eating, and in everything, he says, the average Englishman takes his time and acts as leisurely as if any appearance of haste is undignified. "The man of leisure is their ideal gentleman and is always well-dressed."

Just now Prof. Schafer says he is interested in British politics and intends visiting Parliament as often as possible, as he believes that the making of issues between the parties is imminent.

Miss Olivia Risley, '09, left for Roseburg, the middle of last week.
