

the Week-end is always a red-letter occasion in student activities. In the by-gone years of the University history, Junior day was looked forward to with great interest and much enthusiasm was aroused, chiefly by the annual Junior-Sophomore flag rush. But since the students have abandoned the old barbaric traditions, University day, as it is now known, is devoted to practices of a much higher standard.

The Week-end would be an enlargement of the same plan, a period of industrial, athletic, intellectual and social diversions. Here is hoping that the Juniors will establish the precedent and that the Week-end will become one of the regular University of Oregon traditions.

SENIOR PLAY A BIG SUCCESS

tracted the soft and gentle eyes in the audience. As the dashing Captain Jack he had all of the attributes calculated to set a maiden's heart a flutter. A handsome man, a gallant officer and a polished gentleman, he had, too, the necessary fervor of the lover and played his part with a fine relish. Billy Neal impersonated the officious manservant Fag and in this role he duplicated his previous successes in amateur acting. Paul Bond played the part of Faulkland, the doubting lover, and as one of the lesser light appeared to good advantage. Wm. Dill and Oscar Feruset, in so far as their minor parts would allow them, did well.

In women characters, the Seniors had a highly creditable representation in the four girls taking part. Miriam Van Waters had perhaps the most important and at the same time the most difficult role. As Mrs. Malaprop she exhibited rare ability and her interpretation of the part was warmly appreciated by the audience. Her linguistic exploits in seeking to maintain her pretensions to gentility were one of the best mirth-provokers of the evening.

Louis Bryant, as the romantic Lydia, shares honors with Mr. Mott in furnishing the love element. Her conception of her part was exceedingly good as was that of Belle Van Duyn, who as Julia, provided the cause for Faulkland's moroseness. Helene Robinson made a very coy and bewitching maid, and amply justified the liberties which Sir Lucius and Fag were fain to take.

The caste as a whole, Prof. Glen and Manager Kestley, are to be congratulated and should feel that their work in preparation has not been done in vain.

Student Body Meets.

At the regular weekly assembly hour last Wednesday, the student body held its regular mid-year meeting. After a song by the Glee Club, Geo. Hug and Carl McClain who represented the University of Oregon at the Northwestern Athletic conference held at Walla Walla, reported as to the proceedings there. Their detailed report appeared several weeks ago in the Weekly. Mr. Hug also made a few remarks in regard to the making of a successful track team. Grover Kestley and Dick Hathaway spoke briefly on the need of the student support for baseball. Earl Kilpatrick outlined the plan which the committee had formed for the students' share in the campaign for the university appropriation. Several other students spoke on general topics and the meeting ended. The next regular student body meeting will be for the nomination of student body officers.

Enthusiastic Meeting.

The regular bi-monthly meeting of the Engineering Club held last Friday evening, was a rousing success. The lecture room of Dr. Boynton was crowded, some of the late comers having to stand.

Carl McClain gave an interesting and exceedingly practical talk on the subject of trench digging, followed by Prof. DeCou, who demonstrated the humorous side of mathematics. Prof. DeCou sketched briefly some of the early history of the science, telling of superstitions and peculiar properties that were popularly believed to be invested in certain numbers, afterward giving a few practical demonstrations of deceptive mathematics and trapping

Delegates Elected.

The different classes of the University held meetings last week and elected delegates to the state oratorical convention which will be held at Monmouth, March 13. From the Seniors, Benjamin Huntington and Mozelle Hair were selected; from the juniors, T. R. Townsend and Jesse H. Bond; from the Sophomores, Horton C. Nicholas and Clarence Steele; from the Freshman, Arthur Geary and Hazel McNair. Thos. R. Townsend, is chairman of the delegation and Benjamin Huntington toaster. Bert Prescott, '08, will represent Oregon in the intercollegiate oratorical contest at that place.

Miss Mary Gray, '05, is a guest at the Tau Pi sorority house.

BASEBALL PRACTICE BEGINS

Plenty of New Material From Which to Choose.—Dr. Leonard Will Act as Coach.

Baseball practice begins this week. The first problem that confronts Captain Hathaway and his men is the construction of a diamond. The diamond will be on the campus, about where it was last year, west of Johnson Hall. Manager Mount has been ill and the work has not been pushed but will be done early this week.

Between 30 and 40 men will probably report for initial practice. Dr. Leonard, instructor in Mathematics, and a former star of Michigan and Colorado Universities, who is to coach the teams will thus have plenty of material with which to work and three or four teams can easily be organized. Sid Smith, Kelly, Beck and Wistar Johnson are the only members of last year's team who are not in college, and baseball interest among freshmen is keener than ever before. Competition for places will be close in many instances. Hurd and Clifford will try for pitcher, together with Dickson, Healey, Huggins, Henkel and others. For catcher there will be interesting competition among Taylor, Healey, McEwen, Jamison, Kennedy and others. Coleman is a new man in the infield.

The schedule is by no means fully arranged. The season will start during Easter vacation with a trip to Washington which may extend north as far as Victoria.

With so much good material, and a coach who is well liked by all, the baseball squad feels happy and hopeful.

BASKET BALL SEASON CLOSES

men's line up, and Kuykendall did much fancy tossing. As a result the juniors and helpmates got but one goal to five of Kuykendall, Penland, et al. This gave the former the game by a margin of four points and they trotted from the field much elated. The line-up was as follows:

Senior-sophomores: Forwards, Williams, Bond, Cooper; center, Kuykendall, Swift; guards, Hawley, Brooks, Penland.

Miss Helen Barber, of Portland, is visiting in Eugene for a few days.
