EUGENE, OREGON

The Philologist Society.

A quorum of the Philologists met last Saturday evening and held a highly interesting meeting. After attending to a little business they went on with the program, which consisted of extemporaneous speeches and a debate. It happened that none of the extemporaneous speakers were present, but the debate was a stupendous success. The question was: "Resolved, that the editors-in-chief of the Oregon Weekly and Monthly should receive credit towards graduation for work done on those publications. This question led to a lively and spirited discussion. Those who upheld the affirmative were: Gardener, Hoisington, and Beatty; those on the negative were: Powers, Briedwell and Richardson. The judges decided that the editors ought to receive credit for so much extra work, and, considering the amount of able argument advanced by the affirmative, it was a just and proper decision.

Dr. J. Whitcomb Brouger, of the White Temple, of Portland, will speak at Y. M. C. A. next Friday evening at 6:45. The meeting is open as usual to everyone, and all men of the University will be welcome.
