A Statement

The Monthly wishes to state that Leroy Woods article, "Shopwork," in the Laboratory department of the current issue, has suffered from misprint. The article was turned in to the editor in proper form and condition. We regret that it was mutilated in printing; the fault lies neither with the author nor the proof-reader.

Another well-spring of right thinking, true understanding, and kindliness is the weekly meeting when for an hour girls come in to commune together on whatever things are lovely, pure and of good report. The perspective of daily life on the campus sometimes seems out of balance; but seen through some passage of scripture, or the quiet eyes of charity or the consensus of faith, the lines readjust themselves. And all life out yonder beyond the day of graduation means more to the woman equipped with a trained moral purpose and self-reliant thinking.

Last Friday evening some of the college students gave an informal dance at Davies Hall. About thirty couples were present.
