Hand Book.

An excellent handbook was published at the opening of the semester by the Y. M. C. A. of the University. It is neatly bound in leather, with the word "Oregon," in gold, upon the back. It contains all information necessary for the average freshman. Several pages are devoted to the disseminating of good advice to students entering the University for the first time. Ethan Collier and Harold Rounds had charge of printing it.

Copies may be secured gratis at the book exchange.

Joint Social.

No freshman should think of missing the joint reception to the men and women of the University to be given at the Dormitory next Friday evening. Practically every student of the University will be there, and an ideal opportunity will be afforded new students to become acquainted both among themselves and with upper classmen. Custom forbids any molestation of freshmen upon this evening, so none need fear to come. A good program is always provided, and the refreshment committee generally passes around something to eat and drink.

A new "grandfather" clock has been installed in the library.

Oscar O. Prosser, '08, is teaching at Fossil, Oregon.

Ward L. Ray, '08, is principal of Silverton High School. One of his assistant teachers will be Leslie M. Miller, '08.

Timmyloo, the Dormitory goat, is back to college from a pleasant summer at the country home of L. H. Johnson, steward of the University.

John R. Penland, '08, writes to order the Weekly to come to him at Lakeview, Idaho. He is United States Deputy Surveyor, and is temporarily employed at that place.
