

Basket Ball. First Team vs. Employees.

The basket-ball game, played Saturday evening between the first team and the employees' make-up team, was quite an interesting one. It was evident, however, that the employees' team had not had very much practice as they were defeated by a score of 22-2.

It was a clean game from the beginning to the end. Ben Neuman and Albert Pysan of the first team, were the star players, each throwing five baskets apiece. Tom Young threw three baskets and A. Russell one. Adolph Farrow was the only lucky one of the employees' team. He threw one, and the only basket for the employees. Following was the lineup of the two teams:

First Team.	Position.	Employees.
A. Pysan (Capt.)	G.	A. Caloss (Capt.)
B. Neuman	F.	A. Farrow
T. Young	C.	H. Scott
A. Russell	G.	J. Stacy
C. Becker	F.	F. Decker

Officials:—Timekeeper, E. Davis, Referee, W. Turner. Two 20 minute halves.

Excelsior

The Excelsior Literary Society met Jan. 5, 1922, in the usual place (school room no. 6). The Society is pushing to the front every meeting. New members are coming in every week. Boys are all taking good hold in their school work. Study meetings are being held every Thursday evening in the Excelsior Literary Society. Boys take part in one of the societies, you will not get a better chance to learn more knowledges than by your societies. The meeting was called to order by Pres. Smith at 7:50 P. M. There was no business of any kind. The program was opened by an address by Pres. J. Smith, 8-10 by the quartet. Reading by Lawrence Tully. Subject for debate, Resolved:—That a one religion is more preferable than freethought. Every one should have been present to see the boys take part. We every member was on the floor; we had a lot of them, school and factory. The speakers for the affirmative were:—Dr. DeLanor and Thomas Young, and for the negative R. Kottus and E. Belonger. After an exciting debate the judges, Messrs. J. Smith, L. Toby, and H. Salsic, decided on the affirmative side of 2 to 0. The voters for the evening were Messrs. Gills, Alank, Daniel, and Mahone of the Helianth Literary Society, Mr. Gills and Mr. Mahone spoke on the affirmative side, while Mr. Alank objected to speak on either side.

Noupareil.

The Noupareil Literary Society met in school room No. 6 Thursday evening, Jan. 9, 1922. Business was carried on in a lively manner after which the program was rendered being very short on account of absences. The program was as follows:

Recitation.	Violet Dupuis
Story.	Mathilda Boucher.
Yacht Solo.	Mary Decker.
Reading.	Lena Wilbur.

The question for debate was, Resolved:—That an industrial education is of more benefit to the girls of this school than a literary education.

Affirmative.	Negative.
Violet Woodworth.	Fay Charles.
Maggie Damon.	Della Savignier.
Alice McCool.	Josephine Jules.

The debate was rather slow at the first part of the meeting, and the girls didn't seem to take much interest in the debate. Bring up girls and make the Noupareil Literary Society the leading society of the Chemawa school. Those that debated when the subject was brought upon in the house were Maggie Dupuis, Fay Charles, Emma Williams, Lena Smith, Blanche Davis and Irene Campbell. We would like to see more active members. The judges decided in favor of the negative. Excused absences were Edna Belleno, Mary Decker, Emma Sigs, Wilma Studard and Violet Dupuis. Excused absences were Emma Jules and Eleira Parich. As the entire was absent the President appointed Irene Campbell as editor (Pro-Team). On Jan. 2, 1922, the society elected new officers, Miss Emily Dunaway being elected president. The society adjourned at 10 o'clock.
