

Don't Wait to be Told.

If you would advance rapidly in your position, or get on faster, in the world, don't acquire a habit of waiting to be told what to do. Anticipate the wants of your employer. Use your common sense and ingenuity in trying to solve the problems that come up from day to day. Nobody ever advances who constantly waits for directions. It is the man who decides promptly and with precision, without being told what is to be done, and then does it, who gets on in the world.

A habit of doing nothing without orders or directions is perilous to one's faculties and death to individuality and originality. Don't labor under the delusion that to imitate the actions and methods of those above you is all that your position requires. Original work commands attention, and will be of great service in helping you to advance in your position, or in directing work of your own. The valuable employe is the one who anticipates the needs of his position, and attends to them before he is told.

Keep your eyes wide open for the things which need to be done, and do them before you are asked to. You may think that actions which are not prompted by the presence of your employer will never be heard of by him. Parade this delusion. There are innumerable wars in which an employer's habits of work are brought to the attention of his employer; and, in the near future, the right person will be sure of reward.—[E.]

Massasoit Success Club.

Massasoit Success Club had its first regular meeting February 1, 1902, and the name "Massasoit" was adopted, as this is purely an Indian literary society and the first to be organized, having Indians as members.

The meeting was very interesting, in fact so much so that the writer who had an engagement could not leave until the club adjourned.

After all-odd and new business were disposed of the following regular program was rendered, and much credit is due those who took part, as it showed careful preparation on the part of all:

Quotations,	Club.
Opening address,	J. Allen.
Recitation,	J. Raub.
Current Events,	J. Williams.
Instrumental Solo,	J. sub.
Introductory Address—Lasting Influence of a Great Life,	A. Calm.
Discussion,—What qualities in the character of Washington have contributed most to his fame.	Club.

The members of the Massasoit Success Club extend a very cordial welcome to all to join our society. Come on, we'll all.

In the forward step that is marking the advancement of womankind in many countries to-day, Chinese women are seeking the emancipation which means, first of all, the liberation of their feet. This important news comes from Madam Wu Tingfang, who recently returned from a visit to her native land. "Small feet are no longer fashionable," she says. "When I went to China, I found that the feet blooming and fading back of the growth of the feet by our Chinese women is being rapidly abandoned. China has begun to recognize the custom as barbarous." As there are about two hundred million women in China whose feet will, in course of time, be enlarged by this innovation, it may be well to call attention to a prospective new market for western hides. Chicago, the great hide market of America, should acknowledge a twofold gratification, in view of a possible increase in its business and also in the prospect of having a co-mittor as to a condition of customy that has been associated for many years with its reputation.—[E.]
