

INDUSTRIAL NOTES.

Eddie Barn is making a set of harness for Fort Snooks, Wash.

Charles Cutler is helping make fittings to the carpenters' saw quarters.

Fred Adams and Willie Columbus are now working in the harness shop.

Hayne DeWitt one of the painters made a nice arrangement for sawing staving.

It was Simon Booth not Silas who made those nice shelves for the little boy's nursery.

Johnnie Harris has made a complete little bureau as a Valentine present for his best girl.

Julius Gibson and David Mike, are putting in joists to make a room to adjoin the Power Room.

Charley Newton is making nice helpings to go in the carpenter shop in the new Industrial building.

The harness makers would rather make a new uniform for Old Bill than to repair his old one so often.

Simon Booth and Thomas Young have finished making all the doors for the out-paragraph in the new chicken house.

The sewing room girls dressed up the best boys with new caps and aprons so that they look neat and tidy. New boys keep it up.

During the cold spell last week there was considerable wood used. The engine was broken so we had to rent Mr. Goodrich's wood saw.

The painters were pleased to see the new back come up to the paint shop, and as soon as they get some turpentine work will begin to scissor.

Do you see the pile fence posts descending in the hayyard? Yes, Well, that means that the farmers have made a new ten acre hog lot.

The farmer says that James Spencer, Julius Jim and Joe Hob are new additions to the farm detail and are very useful hands.

Charlie Horst, Charlie Bales and Charles Fyrd are among the last detail to the farm, and are doing fine work as young farmers.

Prof Lewis, Jake sorter, Manuel Leggett, Hickford Moserrey and Frank Souvenir have the care of the calves and bring in the cows from the field.

Charlie W. Hilburn is busy drilling holes in the new iron steps which will be used in the well in the tower. Charlie will be head blacksmith some of these days.

Milk is increasing ever since John Boyter took charge of our herd of fine Durham cows. We have a fine lot of young stock which will help our herd in a few years.

Vina Woodworth and Agnes McCloud have just finished tailor made dresses for themselves. They are nicely made considering that they are the first of the kind they have attempted.

Some fine jelly rolls were laid out by Alex Young this week, also Gold and Silver Cake, and Sugared Cookies. Clifford Gonsman, Joe Charles and Manuel Bales will have their turn at cake making later.

Today the wagon shop received a valuable tool from the Commission. "Alford's Little Giant Box Sifter." It is a companion tool to No. 2 Little Giant Hub Horn, which was received early in the season.

Did you hear something that sounded like a pile driver today? Yes, Well, that was Jessie Miller and Howard Gardner driving fence posts. Mr. Childers says that they are best rate hands at that work.

The boys in the Blacksmithing Department were glad to see the new set of full-mounted stock and dies and the new big upright drill. Eddie Brown and Peter Laflumbola said they wanted to try the new drilling-machine first, but after they had drilled about 60 or 70 holes in the brackets and step irons of the new iron stairway that the blacksmiths are putting in the well, so as to make it convenient for the Engineer to go down and grease the pump, Eddie said he was fagged out and Peter had a very sore throat.
