

"Hayesville" vs. "Brooks."

Last Tuesday evening a game of basket ball was played between the two Y. W. C. A. teams.

The game started out with a rush and in a very short time, Hayesville, as one of the sides was named, had a goal to their credit. No trouble was experienced in throwing goals and four Brooks soon saw it was up to them. Dottie Wiggins and Theresa Chesser were the stars for Hayesville, throwing nearly all the goals. Interest and enthusiasm were added to the general feeling by the juggling of netball whenever a good play was made. They were stationed at intervals and both sides tied with each other to see which could get the better yet. It was soon apparent that the wise and knowing ones were those on the Hayesville side.

The first half ended with the score standing 25-15 in favor of Hayesville.

The second half was somewhat livelier than the first and Brooks was better able to hold its opponent down as far as scoring is concerned.

The final score was 32-21 in Hayesville's favor.

Tom Young and Ben Neufus were the officials.

A small admission fee of 5 cents was charged and after the game refreshments were served. The merry crowd retired about 10 o'clock.

The object of this affair was to raise sufficient money to send a delegation to the State Y. W. C. A. Convention at Pater (over April 17-20)

Literary Prescriptions.

For action read Homer and Scott.

For choice of individual words read Keats, Tennyson, Emerson.

For cheeriness read Mowbray.

For woman's cause read Benjamin Franklin.

For emotion read Bacon and Pope.

For obscurity read Virgil, Milton and Arnold.

For humor read Chaucer, Cervantes and Twain.

For imagination read Shakespeare and Job.

For interest in concrete things read Jane Austen.

For light read Burns and Byron.

For logic and patient observation of nature read Thomson and Walton.

For simplicity read Burns, Whitteer, Bunyan.

For smoothness read Addison and Hawthorne.

For the study of human nature read Shakespeare and George Eliot.

For subtilty of observation read Milton.

For vivacity read Stevenson and Kipling.—From Knowles' Practical Hints for Young Writers, Readers and Book Reviewers.

The Wagon Campaign has some good sentences on Indian dances:

It is a protest against progress. In the song and drum of the dances, the past is praised, and the ways of their fathers are presented as the ways of life for the children. It is a protest against the new ideas of property. That labor should be the price of property is repugnant to the old Indian dance-master. The Indian dance, in its nature, is an enemy to Christianity. It is a cult, a worship. The white man can never comprehend the Indian dance until he takes into consideration its religious element.

They had a very hot debate at the Excelsior Literary Society on Thursday night. That's the way boys. Don't sit like tombs on a log. Get up and talk and when you talk, say something.

Miss Dora Gray a very promising young lady of our school gave us a short visit Sunday, after a week's absence. Dottie and Ingos were by. Mrs. Charles Gray of Salem who has been quite ill.

Arthur Bessett left for Silver Monday after a short visit to his home in Chemawa. Arthur says he is a "hay seed" now and his old friends would hardly recognize him in the gym hat, gaiter and gaiter boots, while at work on his farm.