The band is practicing some hard pieces of music now, which will enable them to play the less difficult music with ease.

Cora Richardson is a very nice housekeeper, she is learning us how to be housekeepers and we are learning pretty good.

The school-room is the place where we get our schooling and we should be quiet in there and not annoy our teacher, if we do talk we are disobeying our teacher.

The members of the Nonpariel society want to make up and do better than they did this week, or some other society will be in the lead. They had a very good debate, however.

Mary J. Smith has just finished a very beautiful piece of Battenburg which has taken her two years to make. Any one wishing to see this beautiful piece of work may call on the Priscillas' on Monday evening at the usual time of meeting.

Joe Bittles, one of our smallest boys, believes in being up to date. He gets the other small boys to ride him in his "Automobile" (Wheelbarrow) and is also a good friend to his playmates, when they have something good to eat.

There is a lot of work to be done in the Commissary. There is unpacking to be done besides delivering things to various departments; the carpenter, Mr. Woods, is also hard at work with some of his boys fixing up the cellar for various things which are to be stored in there. And now the "Commissary rats," as we are called, are hard at work cleaning up, putting things in good order, and also making all the room we can for other things.

How shall We Make our School and Teacher Happy?

(MIXED GRADE, UNCORRECTED ITEMS.)

To make our school and teacher happy, we must obey our teacher. We must be good boys and girls and to our teacher. Don't read like a dead person we must read for life and don't be ashamed when you read. Don't play in the school room let us study hard.

How shall we make our school happy. You must read with expression not in monotone and you will make your teacher happy. You must write good and plain so your teacher can read it and she will be please.

To make our teacher and school happy we must be good and kind to others and try and make them happy our teacher and classmates and others too. And try and to do our best in our studys and be good children and do what is right.

Reader with expression and spelling good. Don't reader with monotone and study your lesson and make sentences good.

To make our school happy we must keep clean before we went to school. We must read with expression. Be content your teacher and keep clean your arm, face and good maining. We must quit during our school and study our spelling.
