

Local and General.

The brick walls were started for the new building Wednesday.

Stella Feaster is working on the first floor of the little boy's home.

Mrs. Hill is busy at work with the little girls patching the boys' clothes.

Jennie Brown, an Indian girl, is postmistress at Chillico, Okla.

Maud Stoddard will spend a few days with her sister, Mrs. Ferris, in Salem this week.

Vina De Vault is working in the sewing room and will soon be a nice little dress-maker.

Mr. Westley was on the sick list for a day or two last week, and the gardeners reported to Mr. Cooper.

Richard Harris is back in the school-room eager and anxious to learn. Richard never wastes time in the school.

Mr. and Mrs. Mann, Mrs. Godwin, Alex Young and Frisco Day, spent last Thursday visiting the insane asylum and penitentiary near Salem.

Mr. Stoudenmeyer has his force of apprentices at work renovating the cottage. New paper will be put on the walls and the wood work repainted.

Mrs. Brewer made a flying trip to Portland Tuesday to meet her husband and spent the day with him there.

A. M. Caisse, who has been visiting friends and relatives at Tacoma and other Sound points for the past month, returned last Wednesday and resumed his duties as scenographer in the office.

Mr. Robt. Henderson is preparing to put up a new two-story store building in the near future. The population of Chemawa is increasing so rapidly that he finds his present quarters growing too small for his increasing trade.

The Chemawa delegates to attend the Bible conference of the Y. M. C. A. held at Albany last week were: Jos Teabo, Jesse Crook and John Stacey.

Among the Pupils.

We are all much pleased with Mr. Wilson, our new teacher.

The children of the second grade were sorry to leave Miss Hultman.

Maggie Pambrum has recovered from her recent illness and is attending school again.

We are all pleased with Miss Miller, our second grade teacher.

If any one wants a dress made call on Cora Richardson.

Miss Sellers is going to have the prettiest door in the little girls' home.

The sewing-room girls have begun making the duck dresses for summer.

Margery Hickman has been demoted from the sixth grade A. to the sixth B.

Alvina Collins and Ruth Barrett were excellent nurses during Miss Sherrards illness.

Katherine McDonald is taking lessons on the violin and is learning very fast.

In the quarterly examination recently held, Dora Goodie stood at the head of the third grade with an average of 97.4 per cent.

We are all glad to see Maggie Pambrum back to school. She is now working in the dining-hall. Ellen Johnson is also working in the same place and is highly spoken of.

The girls that went to take dancing lessons Wednesday night seem to have acquired the art in a very short time, judging by their talk and the instructions they were giving those not in attendance.

We Prescillas have not met for several weeks, so we don't know what our prominent member is doing; whether she is making battenburg collars or washing sweaters.

Pedro Cheveo is learning to play the clarinet and is getting along nicely. He expects to join the band next year. Wm. Winnier has also taken up the clarinet and is studying hard to master the instrument. Stay with it, boys; crown your efforts with success.
