

Industrial Notes.

will hurry any way in order to give the blacksmiths a chance to try there new fires that will soon be ready to take their first fire bath.

Joe Davis is reported sick this week but we hope he will soon be over his illness.

Sebastian LeChester shows his previous training in carpentering by his good work joining up 12 foot table top, but owing to the green lumber he is compelled to use, the close joints do not show after a day or two of wasting and shrinking in a warm room.

Harness Shop.

Orens Howard is making a fine set of single harness.

Several sets of heavy harness are under construction.

The shoe makers are busy repairing the small boys' shoes and making new ones.

Brown Pinte is making an extra heavy set of harness.

The Blacksmiths.

The blacksmith who intends to progress and keep in line with his fellow workmen should see and know what they are doing. There are plenty of chances for observation for boys who work in the shop at Chemawa. Apprentices, when visiting Salem, should spend part of their time visiting the different shops. By so doing they will get many new ideas and learn much.

James Jefferson and Silas Meeker are fixing a place for the new forge.

Frank Saraham is getting to be very handy in the shop. Frank is here to learn and is doing very well.

Silas Moon does all the plow repairing for the farmers and gardeners.

Ignatious Williams and Joe Alexander are taking lessons in tempering.

The Blacksmith shop boys challenge the boys of any other department in Chemawa for a game of base ball. With Moon behind the bat and Poland in the box they do not beleive any other department can defeat them.

Eddie Mann brought in his express wagon, which is badly broken, to be repaired, when asked by one of the blacksmith how he broke it, he said he had a run away.

Sewing Room Items.

Vina DeVault deserves much praise for neat work in the sewing room.

Juanita LeMaister made a blue dress for herself and she looks swell in it.

Cora Williams has been added to the detail in sewing.

If any one wants up to-date shirtwaists, skirts or dresses neatly made call on Miss Susie Seigel.

The sewing room girls are happy and contented now, after the sewing room has been painted and furnished so nicely.

Now who was the young lady that said the paint in the sewing room reminded her of half ripe gooseberries and sour cream.

The Tailor Shop.

New tables were placed in the tailor shop this week.

All school orders are caught up with, however there are a few outside orders for clothes yet to be filled.

Phillip Sorahan is busy making a pair of pants.

Fay Charles and Jane Evans are making a dress for Mrs. Becker. They have just completed a nice dress for Mrs. Hibb.

Mr. Cooper is fixing the girls lawns and gardens and making a play ground for the little girls and it is very nice.

Work on the building was entirely suspended for several days this week owing to the late arrival of lumber. However a carload arrived on Wednesday and work was resumed. Mr. Erixon has the window casings completed and all work as far as advanced as possible. Should he be able to procure sufficient lumber hereafter the work will go forward with great rapidity.
