

and says, says he, while I'll not say it fer publication, I'll give yez a tip thot my personal friend the Seciretiry ov the Intarier would not stand sich an insult to the governmint and thin says he, Mrs. McFadden what hov yez to say bayfure I pass sintince pon yez?

I says, says I, go to the divil wid yez sintinse and yez name humped up in the middle, I'd rather walk back to civiliseashun and get tharty day for livin, thin cook fer yez governmint blackguards fer siven and a half a wake. —Chippeway Herald.

HOW TO HOLD YOUR FRIENDS.

Those who would make friends must cultivate the qualities which are admired and which attract. If you are mean, stingy, and selfish, nobody will admire you. You must cultivate generosity and large-heartedness; you must be magnanimous, and tolerant; you must have positive qualities; for a negative, shrinking, apologizing, roundabout man is despised. You must cultivate courage and boldness; for a coward has few friends. You must believe in yourself. If you do not, others will not believe in you. You must look upward, and be hopeful, cheery, and optimistic. No one will be attracted to a gloomy pessimist.

The moment a man feels that you have a real live interest in his welfare, and that you do not ask about his business, profession, book, or article merely out of courtesy, you will get his attention, and will interest him. You will tie him to you just in proportion to the intensity and unselfishness of your interest in him. But if you are selfish and think of only self advancement; if you are wondering how you can use everybody to help you along; if you look upon every person you are introduced to as so much more possible success-capital; if you measure people by the amount of business they can send you, or the number of new clients, patients, or readers of your book, they can secure for you they will look upon you in the same way.

If you have friends, don't be afraid to express your friendship; don't be afraid to tell them you admire them. If you love anybody, why not say so? If you enjoy one's company, why not say so? It costs you nothing; it may mean everything to your friend, and to your friendship.

A lady was asked how she managed to get along so well with disagreeable people. "It is very simple," she replied; "all I do is to try to make the most of their good qualities and pay no attention to their disagreeable ones." No better formula by which to hold friends could be found.

—September Success.

THE CHEMAWA AMERICAN.

This is the title of a very pretty weekly magazine published by the students of the Salem Indian Training School at Chemawa, Oregon. It contains personals about the students and teachers, and matters of general importance to the Indian service.—Daily Capital Journal.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks to our kind friends of Chemawa for the many acts of kindness shown us during our late bereavement.

Mrs. J. CHILDERS.
(Miss) CLAUDA CHILDERS.

Mr. Cooper returned Thursday forenoon from a trip to the Sound country and British Columbia.

Sykes Mitchel writes that a large number of pupils are anxious to come to Chemawa from Shasta County.

Don't fail to read the advertisements in this issue. These people think your trade worth asking for.