

AT IT AGAIN.

Chilocco and Carlisle, our two big brothers, are "scrapping." It is no exhibition boxing match either. Gloves were thrown aside in the first round and now it is for blood.

Here, big boys, you stop that or all the rest of your brother schools will get after both of you, red hot. Don't be jealous of each other. There is lots of room in this big country for a dozen Carlisles and Chiloccas. So be good now, make up, and use all your ammunition in the future in civilizing and educating the Indian, in your own preferred way, and do not waste it "hitting" each other, by unkind criticism and harmful comment.

CHOOSING BOYS.

George Sexton, who has charge of two hundred boys at Wanamaker's, loves to talk about boys. "Boys are not a necessary evil at this establishment," he said, "they are the material out of which men are to be made."

"How do you choose your cash boys, Mr. Sexton? I asked.

"My first question is; 'Where is the boy?' You see, it all depends upon the boy himself. You can judge the boy better from his appearance, his manner, his dress, and the way he comes into an office, than from any description of him. Character shows forth in little things you can't hide. I take boys by what you might call first impressions. I have sized a boy up before he asked me for a place. The removal or non-removal of the hat on entering the office, the respectful and self-respecting way in which a boy addressed me, the way in which he meets my look and questions, all give me an idea of his bringing up and the "stuff" that is in him. As to appearance, I look at once for these things: polished shoes, clean clothes, and clean face, hands and finger nails. Good clothes are not requisites; a boy's clothes may be ragged, his shoes have holes in them, yet his appearance may still give evidence of a desire to be neat. I will not employ a cigarette smoker, if I know it. As for reference a boy's teacher is the best reference he can have. The recommendation which a good boy in our employ gives a boy applying for a position always receives marked consideration. Good cash boys don't stay cash boys long. Some boys who came here as cash boys are now junior salesmen. Others have good positions throughout the house.—Selected.

AN INTERESTING LECTURE.

On Monday night Inspector Chubbock delivered a most interesting lecture on dairying to the faculty and student body. He showed by actual experiment how the per cent of butter fat is ascertained by using the Babcock test. The milk from several of the school cows was tested and the amount of butter fat was determined from each cow for a period of five days milking. Then the pupils figured out how much butter could be produced in a year, and the value of the same in dollars and cents.

It was a most practical as well as scientific discourse and pupils and employes were deeply interested. Several of the prominent farmers and
