ELSEWHERE IN THE SERVICE

The man who can look at the colts and calves and pigs and turkeys and chickens at the Grand Junction school, and not want to be a farmer is built wrong somewhere.—Reveille.

The weather has been unusual most of the time lately. There have been showers, a heavy rain, winds, and hard frosts. January first for a few moment a hail or sleet storm was observed, and on January third the icicles about the fountain were four inches long. The ground is beautifully green, the air is pure, the stars are bright, and the mountains heavily covered with snow.—Native American.

Twenty-eight good sized class room gardens have been made at the rear of the school building. Borders of sweet peas, scarlet, flax, etc., are being made and general improvements are going on all around the school building. Some good results ought to follow, especially after the bountiful rains of the past week.—Native American.

At the present writing Colonel McLaughlin is here having a council with the Indians in regard to the opening of Tripp County.—New Era.

James H. Owen, of Los Angeles, Calif., has the contract for the new buildings at this school.—Reveille.

A car load of Arizona oranges recently sold in New York for $8.40 per box, the highest price it is stated, "ever paid in any market in the world for a car load of oranges from any where.—Native American.

Mrs. Charles L. Davis, lately of Fort Totten, North Dakota, is visiting her sister, Miss Dittes, in Phoenix. Supervisor Davis is probably now at Chilocco.—Native American.

Opera chairs have been placed in the assembly room, greatly improving the appearance of the hall and adding to the comfort and convenience of all.—Native American.

Supt. Henry J. Phillips of the Chamberlain school has been promoted to the position of Commercial Agent for the Sioux Indians.—Mr. Phillips is an old Indian worker and his many friends on the Coast who will be pleased to hear of his advancement.
