

What to Teach Daughters

Teach her that 100 cents make one dollar.

Teach her how to wear a simple muslin dress, and to wear it like a queen.

Teach her how to sew on buttons, darn stockings and mend gloves.

Teach her to dress for health and comfort, as well as for appearance.

Teach her to arrange the parlor and the library.

Teach her to love and cultivate flowers.

Teach her to have a place for everything, and to put everything in its place.

Teach her to say no, and mean it; and to say yes, and to stick to it.

Teach her to have nothing to do with intemperate and dissolute young men.

Teach her to pay regard to the character of those she would associate with, and not to know how much money they have.—Ex.

Ignorance

The cause of all misery is ignorance. The real object of living, is directly or indirectly to be happy. Universal experience teaches us that happiness is rarely attained and the cause must lie, not in the absence of its existence but in our failure to perceive and follow the right methods. We must live and therefore should live scientifically. The purposeless man or woman is an object to be pitied. One must have a well-defined pursuit, object or ambition in life, and bend all the energies to its fulfillment. Calmness, repose and faith in one's self develops power.

Method, order system, good plans and good management are indispensable in attaining true business success—and true success brings happiness.—Ex.

BREVITIES

Basketball is all the rage!

"Oregon weather" is the cry!

Get busy! Learn your songs and yells. The first team basketball girls will play a game soon with Willamette.

After working in the hospital eight months, Odessa Dodson is now detailed in the sewing room, and indeed, to our surprise, she can sew as well as she can mix medicine.

A small crowd witnessed the game of basketball between the High School girls and Willamette. Whispers have been heard that no one in either team can play as good as Tillie.

The sixth grade has finished reading the life of William Cullen Bryant and starting to read the life of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. It is interesting to read about the great poets.

We are congratulating Alice Williams for the many good news she has reported this week. We are now looking forward for other pupils to give our paper such support as Miss Williams did. We hope she will continue the same.

A wedding was celebrated in Chema-wa at the McBride Hall on Thursday morning when Fred Foster a member of the engineering department was united to Addie Saylor. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Moore of Salem. The CHEMAWA AMERICAN wishes them happiness and success all through their life. Mr. and Mrs. Foster left in the evening for Tacoma, Wash., where Mr. Foster has had a position offered him.
