

EXCHANGES

The first one that came to our notice this week was the Indian School Journal. It contain twenty cuts representing views of the school and classes of '06, '07, and '08. On the cover was George Washington's picture which makes the paper very appropriate for this month's issue.

The Oak has a long and well written exchange column.

The Washingtonian has doubly increased in size. We are glad to see your improvement, Washingtonian.

The Dictum Est said, "The Interlude would be improve very much in appearance if it contained a few cuts." This can be applied to itself.

A new interesting exchange. The Jayhawker, published by the students of Kansas City High School, has been added to our exchange list.

The Indian News, seems that it has been awakened from its slumber. Beside it has greatly increased in size but also contains many interesting things.

For the first time since the beginning of this term we received a copy of Talks and Thoughts. We appreciate it very much. It is just like a letter from a distant friend whom we had thought dead.

The News, Eugene High School, Ore. has a very attractive appearance. It has some well written stories and the two well printed cuts, but we don't know to what departments they belong as there were no signs whatever for explanation. This is the only slight fault we found in the News.

"What makes such a bad smell about the postoffice?" asked one gentleman of another.

"I know," interrupted little Johnnie, "its the dead letters."—Ex.
