

WHAT MAN SHOULD DO

Rise when a woman enters the room.

Remain standing until she is seated.

Give her his chair if there is no other.

Rise when any person, man or woman, is introduced to him.

Open the door for a woman to pass through.

Hold it open and let her pass through first if it opens toward them.

Pass through first and hold it open for her if it opens from them.

Turn and walk with her if he joins her on the street, and not stop her to converse.

Not offer to pay her carfare unless he is her escort by intention, and not merely her companion by accident.

Remove his hat completely when greeting a woman or when his woman companion greets an acquaintance.

Take the curb side of the street when walking with either one or two women.

Assist his feminine companion in and out of a carriage, trolley train or any conveyance.

Precede her in entering a theatre, hotel, lobby, restaurant or any public place except a church, when a woman goes first, unless there are no ushers, in which case he goes first to find seats.

Permit her to step into an elevator first, always. In getting out, if it is into a public place, he leaves first.

Invariably proffer his seat to age, infirmity or helplessness, in whatever guise they appear. This is not more good manners than the kindly instincts of a gentleman toward whoever is weaker than himself.

Offer his seat to any woman who seems less able to stand than himself—not because she is pretty, or smart, nor even because she is a woman, but for the reason set forth in the foregoing paragraph.

Remember that these observations are not foolish, meaning less subserviences to woman, but they make for the gentle courtesy and thoughtfulness which makes all human intercourse more pleasant.—Ex.
