The fame of Chemawa's roses has extended to Idaho and Miss Preuss responded to a call for rose plants by sending a box of cuttings kindly prepared by Mr. Cooper, to Mrs. Chas. Payne of Lewiston, Idaho.

One of the clerks was wondering what the result would be if a telegram came in the absence of Mr. Henderson and no one to take it, but Chief Clerk Spink promptly replied that he guessed it would have to stick there until the operator returned.

Last Tuesday evening a number of the employes were invited by Miss Hutchinson to come to Miss O'Here's room after the Y. M. C. A's entertainment. Owing to the room of being too small for the number of guests, the hall was hastily furnished, though Miss Hutchinson, Mrs. Cooper and Miss Jones were very busy with preparations at the last moment, Miss O'Here was entirely unaware of the proceedings.

Miss Irene Campbell and Gertrude Brewer furnished some fine music for the evening and after a short social gathering, dainty refreshments of icecream, wafers and shortcake were served, and as it was already a late hour the guests retired.

Then the hall urchin's fun began, the furniture had to be returned, the dishes washed, and worst of all, upwards of a gallon of icecream had to be disposed of, and only four to eat it. Some "hazing" certainly had to be done, and it was not until after midnight before all was quiet, when a guest is forced to eat more than three dishes of icecream, Miss Jones calls it "hazing."
