ONLY A FEW more days before commencement, with its sermons, music, orations and addresses, and, too, its field-meet, baseball, and dress parade will be a great celebration in Chemawa.

At last year's commencement exercises the attendance was said to be the greatest in the history of Chemawa. We believe that the reason for this is that the surrounding communities are becoming more acquainted with, and interested in the Indians and their work, and on this coming commencement we feel that there will be hundreds of friends who will come to see our boys and girls graduate.

Chemawa is a very beautiful place and always accommodates and pleases its visitors. Its location may lead people, sometime, to think it is a Salem park. For many already mistake Chemawa for Salem.

There are bears to be seen and deer with their young fawns. The beautiful grounds are carpeted with verdure and dotted with shady trees. Its cement walks which are bordered with roses lead to all the buildings in the school. On the whole, Chemawa presents a veritable paradise.

SEASONABLE AND REASONABLE ADVICE.

I. Stay with it, anything that's worth doing at all is worth doing well.

II. Do not object to a little sunburn. Rose color is the fashionable shade.

III. Observe the rules "eternal fitness" and does appropriately for the work. Ribbon sashes and lace hose are out of place in a berry patch.

IV. Don't visit between rows. Wait until you get home to tell that interesting story.

V. Fill your boxes just as full as you like to have them when you buy berries.

STRAY NOTES FROM THE BERRY PATCH.

Bessie and Lizzie Walker are faithful pickers.

Who broke the record Tuesday?

One crate and 16 boxes. Good for you Alice.

Lena Charles and Clarinda Blodgett pick fast, clean and cheerfully, good girls those two!

An ice-cream treat Sunday evening was the reward for clean picking at Mrs. Liphart. Lucky girls!

Caroline Wright won the name of picking the cleanest berries at Jorgenson's Monday afternoon.

Miss Miller and her brood of girls can be seen wending their way to Barthomewes every day. What is the attraction?
