

INDUSTRIAL NOTES

The girls on the laundry detail are doing good work.

The last of the straw was bailed and hauled to the shed this week.

The girls in the laundry are doing up Mitchell Hall curtains this week.

The carpenter boys have just put on a new pair of doors at the school building furnace room.

The gardeners are busy cutting strawberry runners. They will soon be digging potatoes.

The wagon shop has room for 2 or 3 boys on the forenoon detail, and so has the printing office.

The fences are being put up around the new barns which will keep the stock from having so much liberty.

If Chemawa had twenty five acres of such rich grass for field it would largely solve the problem of forage crops.

The farmers will finish seeding fifteen acres of Cheat on the Lake this week being the first sowing done in this region.

The grain for fall sowing came in Monday and was stored in the Commissary, except what was wanted for immediate use.

Joe L'Heureux and John Boyce are new members of the harness shop and are both doing well. There is room for about five more good boys in this shop.

The Alfalfa field is a beautiful sight with its rich green carpet spread over the ground. It is no longer a question about it growing in this country if properly treated.

The wagon shop had a career the other day. It was "Polly" and what do you suppose she wanted? She wanted the privilege to catch our rats and she has our permission to do so.

The Domestic Science Department is very popular. All of our girls will have the opportunity of becoming good cooks and neat housekeepers. The most modern methods will be employed.

The wagon makers are making an effort to arrange the wagon stock and get things in shape for convenience and the building of new wagons. Pretty soon we will be able to furnish shavings in any quantities.

Mollie, one of the bay mares, died very suddenly on Tuesday. She was getting a bone spain on her right hind leg and had been turned out to rest up after the drives to the hop-fields. She dropped dead and never struggled.

If a vehicle with three wheels is called a triecyle and one with two wheels is called a bicycle, what is the name of one having one wheel? Some one who knows the latin numerals says a "monocycle." No sir: it is a wheel borrow.

The wagonmakers and blacksmiths are making a wagon for Supt. Kershaw of Grande Ronde and the harnessmakers are making a complete set of breeching harness for him. He met with quite a loss by fire which destroyed barn and all wagons except one old condemned one.
