

INDUSTRIAL NOTES

The blacksmiths are busy ironing another wagon on a rush order.

The carpenter apprentices have been busy with repair work on the different buildings.

Ellen Toyet is hem-stitching an apron for Mrs. Teabo and is doing very creditable work.

The sewing room girls are busy making uniforms for the girls of company B McBride Hall.

Owens Howard has a new suit of clothes made in the Chemawa tailor shop by Leon Reinken and George Scott.

Bessie Lahr and Dora Lane will be excellent bread makers judging from their work. The proof is in the eating.

The domestic science classes have had a number of visitors the past week who speak in a very complimentary manner of their meals.

The laundry windows have all been repaired and we hope that the boys will not play foot ball around there and endanger them.

The wagon makers made a reel for the loom, and Mr. Beck who has charge of the carpet weaving machine wanted it painted red. Why?

Edward Loubert favored this office by showing us how to put up shelves and to his credit we can say that his work is neat and well done.

One of the girls says—Miss Brown is busy teaching the girls how to cut, sew and do many things in the line of sewing as she has the uniforms to make up.

The Laundry girls were very busy this week—Besides their usual amount of work they washed the curtains and blankets from the small girls home.

A visit to the wagon shop found the wagonmaker boys busily engaged in putting together the wagon ordered by Supt. Kershaw of Grande Ronde.

The tailor boys are at work on quite a number of custom made suits, under Mr. Beck's supervision. This is the kind of work that is of the most practical benefit to them, and it is this system at Chemawa that makes more tailors than clothes.

The Laundry boys, John Miller and Allen McGibbons have been taking their turn in the hospital. While the girls are glad to see Allen return to duty they are sorry to see John take an un-willing visit to the hospital; we hope to see him at his post soon again.

The boys in the harness shop have completed the harness for the Grande Ronde school and are now working on a hack harness for the Siletz school—The boys who are doing good work in this shop are—Ben Wilson, Elmer Zimmerman, Alvin Polloch, Joseph L'Heureux, John Boyce, Henry Dillstrom, Elmer Sorahan and Maxime Barnaby.

The carpet weaving department has established headquarters over the printing office and we hope to hear from them soon. At times the printers think they hear too much. We have our "devil" in training quarters and when the time is ripe we will turn him loose and if he doesn't silence Mr. Beck and his boys with the noisy machine we will need a new "devil".
