

INDUSTRIAL NOTES

Lee Evans is back in the wagon shop again.

The farmers have resumed plowing on the upland.

Jemima Tendoy made some nice apple pies last Saturday morning.

The engineers are quite busy putting in new flues in the middle boiler.

Harry Queachpalma has been repairing windows in the little boys' home.

The carpenters are getting ready to make the side walk to the street car line.

John Boyce has finished a fine set of bridles this week which were made very nicely.

Levi Sortor who has been working on the farm entered the plumbing department.

The wagonmakers are making a four and half inch wagon and a wagon box this week.

John Sulkey had lessons in door making this week John is a good worker, and is improving in his work quite rapidly.

Mr. Hamilton is having a suit of clothes made in the Chemawa-tailor shop. Mr. Hamilton is a hop grower. A number of our boys helped pick his hops this fall.

The gardeners have been trimming the blackberry and grape vines between showers and are back again housing the potatoe crop.

ACADEMIC

Mr. Chalcraft sent William Burke from the Colville reservation.

Mr. Campbell presided at a very interesting teachers meeting on Monday night.

The new pupils that have entered the fourth A. of late are Alex Ashley, Rob't. Evans, and Henry Nelson.

We all enjoy our school room work on the subject "Apples." We will have that subject one more week in the 6th. and 7th. grades.

The three best apples that were drawn from memory in the sixth grade were drawn by Joe Dillstrom, Irene Peone and George Williams.

Some of our pupils show a lack of interest in our school paper. They are not willing to write items for it and yet are always criticizing it.

All the pupils of the 7th Grade wrote items for the American with the exception of Lizzie Beaver and Anna Hauser. Do not be afraid to try girls. You will learn how by persevering.

The seventh grade pupils were all pleased to see that their class-mate John Miles handled his tools for grafting, so steadily. Its worth while to bear in mind that the instructions he gave was an interesting one.
