The dressmakers are getting along nicely with their uniforms.

The farmers are now plowing in the old clover patch behind the chicken yard.

Josie Meeler of Dallas Ore. visited her sisters May and Caroline Monday.

Bessie Clark is now making herself a nice winter dress and she is making it very neatly and nice.

Leon Reinken is making a coat for himself. The boys in the tailor shop are all doing excellent work.

Miss Brown gave her sewing room girls a good talk last Monday. She told them how to use the skirt pattern.

Superintendent Chalcraft is unable to get home, on account of the wash-outs on the railroad. We will all be glad when he returns.

Nellie Shepard is working for Mrs. Chalcraft. We hope she will make a good housekeeper. Sallie Boswell is taking her place in the sewing room.

Last Saturday the president of the Y. W. C. A. came to the small girls' home to take down the names of the girls who would like to join the girls Branch and they got thirty members.

Last week the Carpenters repaired the sidewalk to the Printing Office and Blacksmith shop. It is now much better for the Blacksmiths and Printers to walk on a solid side walk.

Mr. George Melson is using his new forge now. Sam McCush and Mack Colby, just got their new forges finished the other day and are proud of their work. Hurrah for the Blacksmith shop! It is getting better every day.

"Cleanliness is next to Godliness."

The fourth A. had a lesson on biscuit making recently.

Mr. Brewer left Chemawa on business last week and has since been marooned at Castle Rock by the flood.

Whispering in the school room shows a lack of politeness and a lack of ambition to me can afford to waste one minute in school.

The boys are going to chapel in a very bad line. What is the matter with the officers, can't they do their duty without having Mr. Brewer to "jog them up."

Eddie, Marlon, Maggie and Harriet Curl are very anxious to get back to school before Thanksgiving. They live over on the Pacific Ocean. Owing to an accident to their horses they have been unable to get here sooner.

A pupil sends in as her item—

"Patience is a strong link in the chain of success."

"Politeness promotes beauty in him who possesses it, and happiness in those about him."
