

PUPILS' ITEMS

Eugene Williams is back in the paint shop again.

The gardener boys began to prune the fruit trees Monday.

Lavina DeVault and Grace Coburn are busy planning for Xmas.

Thomas McCully is now a member of the plumber force and is doing well.

Philip Warren is getting along nicely in the carpenter shop.

Mrs. Farrow was quite ill last week but is up and around now.

The carpenters just completed two large doors for the new barns.

It is nearly Christmas now and it is time to get your Christmas presents.

Martha LeClair is making a very pretty winter dress for Laura Harnden.

Anna Hauser has proved to be quite a center in the basketball second team.

We all wish that Christmas would come as soon as possible so we will get our presents.

Grace Barrett is expecting her father from Seattle in a few days and she is very happy.

Mr. Beck is busy weaving carpets for the school. He weaves above the printing office.

Miss Miller is very kind to the boys and girls in her grade we all like her for our teacher.

The carpenters are preparing buildings for the cold weather that may and may not come to us.

It is whispered that the Non girls will have a public debate in the near future.

Emma Shepard, Luella Ryan and Nellie Barrett were promoted from B to third A.

Mr. Chalcraft gave the pupils an interesting lecture about the Navajo Indians Monday night.

The delegates who attended the M. C. A convention at Eugene included Albina Pierce at Albany where she is practicing as a nurse.

The pupils were very interested in Chalcraft's and Mr. Campbell's talks about the Navajo and Pueblo Indians.

Domestic Science work in the school room is a great help to us, it is something that is useful to all our life.

Myrtle Berner is getting some very pretty plants for her room and she knows how to take good care of them.

Mr. Campbell gave us a very interesting talk last Monday evening about the Pueblo Indians in New Mexico.

A few more pupils arrived from Yakima a few days ago. They seem to be pleased with their surroundings.

Keep your coats buttoned up so you won't be coughing in chapel because it is so annoying to the one who is talking.

Mr. Westley is teaching his grade boys how to prune trees so they can do it along by themselves while he is gone on his vacation.

The eighth grade pupils are all glad to hear that George Washoe is getting better and hope they will see him in the near future.
