

INDUSTRIAL NOTES

The blacksmiths are busy this week completing the ironing of two first-class farm wagons.

Wm. Watkins has entered the blacksmith shop as an apprentice and has taken hold in good shape.

Mr. Mann and the blacksmith boys were called on to repair the laundry mangle and washers.

John Peazzoni is making good progress in the blacksmith shop.

Mr. Hulden and his force of boys are repairing the fence around the chicken yard.

The eighth grade girls are now studying how to draft patterns in the sewing room.

After we are through with the girls' uniforms we will begin making the summer uniforms.

All of the harnessmakers are busy each boy is making a set of harness complete.

Ben Wilson is working on an extra heavy set of work harness.

There is some harness hanging up in the harness room. This shows that the harnessmakers are always busy.

Billet Lobert has made a nice music stand for himself.

The painters have been busy painting Mr. Swartz's house and a heavy wagon.

Excellent bread is made in our Domestic Science Room, and from the school flour.

Nellie Boswell is now working for Mrs. Campbell and likes her work very much.—A. B.

ACADEMIC

The eighth grade girls are now cooking in the domestic science. They will cook there for two weeks.

The sixth grade had a very nice lesson on physiology Wednesday, the subject was on tobacco.

The monthly average of Clarence Lewis of the 6th grade was 97 per cent and of Irene Peone of the same grade 94 per cent. They stood highest in their class.

Martha Andy is doing very nicely in the fourth grade.

Martin Hartless has returned to the class room from which he had been absent on account of illness. We are glad to see him.

It is reported that some of the boys chew gum in their class rooms. We hope this is a false report and that none of our boys have such bad manners.

Major J. McLaughlin has just been re-appointed for the eleventh time as Indian inspector. Each appointment was for four years. He is rounding out his fortieth year now in the Service. This holds the record for long service in the Interior Department. Major McLaughlin is regarded as the best inspector in the service. He used to deal with the Indians when they lived in Kansas.

According to press dispatches the gas plant of the Pierre boarding school was wrecked Monday evening. Something was the matter with the apparatus and a lighted lantern being taken near the machine it exploded wrecking the building to a considerable extent. The loss was about $5,000.00.—The Weekly Review.
