Do not whisper in chapel on Sunday evenings. It is very rude and impolite and may get the offender into trouble.

Abraham Lincoln's life teaches us that neither poverty nor lack of opportunity can keep us back if we have ambition.

The boys and girls who attend the legislature in Salem should learn a great deal in regard to the proper way of conducting their debating societies.

"The purposes of the Almighty are perfect and must prevail though we living mortals may fail to accurately perfect them in advance."—Abraham Lincoln

It is true of what is said of the blacksmith trade among Indian young men. From the matter of fact, blacksmith is indeed the greater of all other trades. What is it that they don't make? They repair all machineries and make all the forgings before the machines on the fitters can do anything, and there the blacksmith must make their tools and keep them in repair, one must not think that blacksmithing is the whole thing, but, nevertheless it is an important trade. Those who are apprentices of this trade should work hard as it takes a long time to master all its branches of work. It means hard work.—X.

A certain student at Chemawa received a letter from Andrew Alfred who is an ex-pupil, in which he said he liked to come back to school. The letter ends with the following words which he said it especially makes him wish:

"Hundreds of people can talk for one who can think, but thousands can think for one who can see. Instruction ends in the school-room, but education ends only with life. And education is to unfold nature; to strengthen good and conquer evil; to give self help; to make a man or woman."

The above extract shall be an example for those in school now, and they will be profit by it. Just think a young man who had left school because of lacking ambition, and now today seeing in his own vision that he was away off from the road to success. It is the way with many of us—we do not seem to realize that "Opportunity Knocks Today." Boys and girls, it is not a certain boy or girl that can gain good knowledge, as a matter of fact any body can if he or she wants to—do it as Abraham Lincoln did his. What if George Washington had neglected his duty as commander. It is energy, ambition and determination that wins—not "Mr. Idleness" and "Mrs. I do not Care."—X

Y. M. C. A.

The members of the Y. M. C. A. had a short meeting on account of some of the leaders had special work on hand outside, so they did not render the program for the evening. Before adjournment Joe Wiggins was admitted to our roll, and the members gladly received him. Wm. Watkins and William Major, were the visitors. After a closing prayer by Martin Sampson, we adjourned.
