The disciplinarian gave the boys and girls a good talk on saving their money at the school house on Wednesday night.—Native American.

A new concrete bandstand is being built on the lawn west of Mr. Friedman's house.—Indian Leader.

The football boys are away on their western tour adding glory to Carlisle, but at the same time they are adding happiness to many of the students especially to the "football girls" by sending them pretty postals expressing beautiful and lovely sentiments.—The Arrow.

The pupils who came here from Carson complain to their former schoolmates that all they can see at Haskell is trees, grass and cornfields. They certainly forget to mention the beautiful hills and fine view of Kansas University.—Indian Leader.

From reports received from Cheyenne River Agency it would seem that danger of serious trouble with the Utes is about over. A party of over fifty of the able bodied men have gone to Rapid City to work, and Chief Red Cap has placed nearly all of the children of school age in the agency schools.—Weekly Review.

Monday night the girls had a debate. The subject was: "Resolved that chicken raising is of more benefit than turkey raising." One of the girls on the affirmative side said that turkey is only thought of on Thanksgiving day, which I think is true, for we are all looking forward for a turkey's leg.—Native American.

A potato peeler, run by electrical power, will soon be installed in the vegetable room. This machine has the capacity of peeling one bushel of potatoes per minute and will be economical not only in vegetables but in labor, as the long line of small girls who spend several hours a day at the vegetables will be dispensed with.—Sherman Bulletin.

Mr. Ed. Shield, formerly Disciplinarian at Chilocco and who resigned from that position about a year ago has been re-instated in a like position at Grand Junction, Colorado.—New Era.

Harry E. Thacker, an Indian boy who worked at the printing trade at the Carson Indian School a couple of years, is now holding down a case in the Free Press Office.

He is an extraordinarily bright boy and will make a first-class printer. He is a musician of considerable ability and will play solo cornet with the Elko Brass Band and will also play with the Elko Orchestra.—New Indian.
