

PUPILS' ITEMS

Ellen Ferris made herself a pretty dark waist for Christmas.

We are all glad to see so many new pupils arriving here lately.

We are glad to hear that Mr. Brewer is steadily improving in health.

We are very glad that Dean Walker has just come into the third grade.

On account of the hard rain the societies did not meet last Thursday.

Joe Wiggins played a fast game of basketball recently at Woodburn.

Mrs. Bullard, the new nurse, keeps things very clean at the hospital.

Walter E. Haight went to Portland to attend the Dairymen's Convention.

We were glad to see Mrs. Findlay last week, and enjoyed her talk very much.

We are all glad that Nita Jones is out of the hospital and is able to go to school.

The girls have been going to town this and last week to do their Christmas shopping.

All we little boys hope to prune trees as good as Mr. Westley does, when we are men.

We were all glad to hear Mr. Campbell say that he received a letter from Mr. Santa Claus.

The sewing room girls made about 600 candy bags and 100 marble bags for Christmas.

We are all glad to see so many boys and girls taking so much interest in the Bible work.

Mary Loftus has received some very pretty Indian moccasins from her mother.

The fifth grade has been divided into two classes and Miss Lizzie Frazier has taken one of the classes.

We are glad to hear that we are going to have a mandolin and guitar club both for the boys and girls.

Ellen Olney is expecting her mother to be here some time this week to spend a Merry Christmas with her.

Thomas Andrews is practicing hard on his new violin, so we will expect to hear some fine music in the near future.

The domestic science girls were accompanied to the butcher shop recently by Mrs. Cooper to learn the different cuts of beef.

The "Red, White and Blue" candy bags looked very nice in the sewing room, as we do not get to see them but once a year.

I wish every boy and girl in the United States, could have as good a time Christmas, as the boys and girls at Chemawa had.

Alex Covington has been sick in the hospital for a week. And we are glad to hear that he is improving in health and we hope to see him out again.

Eugene Williams, Edward McClellan and Lee Evans, were excused from school last Tuesday to rush some painting in the employees' building.

The boys are glad that their new gymnasium is getting along so nicely. When it is finished it will be a good place for the boys to pass their spare time.

The new hospital will soon be finished and the hospital girls are all in a hurry to move over and get settled. The old hospital will be used for domestic science and sewing departments.
