There are sixty-six State Universities in the United States. The only distinctly Eastern state that has such an institution is Maine. The University of Pennsylvania is a misnomer.—Pacific Wave.

As a protection to the auditory organs of faculty and students several conservatory students have been removed to the balcony where they can't be heard, during the singing service at Chapel.—The Review.

Sarah Maddux, one of our last year graduates, is going to finish central school course this week. She passed her examination yesterday and now she is reviewing until Friday. She is going to enter high school next week. We all hope that she will be successful.—Native American.

The practical and suggestive subject, "Wayside Ministries," was very ably handled by Margaret Paddock at the Thursday meeting. The ways in which a college girl can perform little ministries and the advantage that she herself derives in their performance were especially considered.—Whitman College Pioneer.

Those people who saw the last game between our team and the Y. M. C. A., will be delighted to know that Coaches Milne and Brown have arranged for two more games to be played on neutral ground. Our last game with the Christians was acknowledged by those who know, as being the fastest, cleanest and most brilliant game ever played in the state.—The Gold and Blue.

Mr. Albert Flor, for two years clerk at this school, has resigned to accept a position in the Philippines at $1400 per annum. He left for a short visit to his home in Oklahoma before sailing from Seattle on the 11th of February. Mr. Flor has been faithful in the lower position and will undoubtedly succeed in the more responsible one. He leaves a large circle of friends who wish him well.—Native American.

Objection to the proposed opening of part of the Cheyenne River Agency reservation has sprung up from a new quarter, this time from the towns and settlers on the east side of the Missouri river. It appears that the bill recently introduced in Congress provides for opening the surplus lands in the western part of the reservation only, while it is desired by the towns and counties interested, that all surplus land on the reservation be opened.—Weekly Review.

A. B. Douglas, Jennie L. Douglas and Chas. La-Croix, residents of the Crow Creek Agency, and until recently employes of the Indian service, have been made defendants in a suit commenced in the United States Court at Sioux Falls, wherein the government asks to be awarded a judgment of $5,000 against each defendant. It appears that while being in the employ of the government as additional farmers and industrial teachers the parties carried on continuous trade with the Indians of the reservation, and secured numerous cattle, horses and other property, contrary to the law prohibiting employes from trafficking with Indians.—The Weekly Review.

The eighth grade pupils will gladly welcome Sara Brewer back to school next Monday.

Michel Wilson is making a school coat for himself. This is his first step in coat making, but he is doing good work.
