PROGRESSIVE

The Progressive Society met in the usual place; roll was called and minutes read and stood approved. Some business was transacted. A challenge for a game of basketball was received from the Reliance Society and was accepted, and then the team was organized after which we adjourned.

RELIANCE

The Reliance Literary Society met as usual. The house was called to order by the president, then the roll was called. As we had no program prepared, business was called for and we had a very interesting meeting. We selected our color, which is white. We also organized two basketball teams and sent a challenge to the Progressive Society for a game, in which we hope to defeat them by a one-sided score. We then heard a motion for adjournment.

NONPAREIL

The Nonpareil Society met in their usual place. The president called the house to order and the secretary called the roll. There being no business to transact an extemporaneous debate was given, as we had no regular program. The subject for discussion was "Resolved, that Indian Schools should not be abolished." The affirmative upholder was Eugene Williams, and the negative, Gordon Hobucket. After they had given their opinions the debate was thrown open to the house. When all expressed themselves the judges handed in their decisions which favored the affirmative. The bell tapped and we then adjourned.

ELITE

The Elites met in their usual place and had a very interesting program. The following girls took part:

Song,	Alice McPherson and Lona John
Riddles,	Irma Pollock
Pen Picture,	Amanda Lilligreen
Song,	Christine Boswell
Song,	Pearl Laflumbois
Recitation,	Jane Bailey
Song,	Agnes Shepard and Alice McPherson.

Eleanor Zimmerman makes a very dignified president and Christine Boswell is all that could be desired of a secretary. Miss Bowman is the critic.

LOCALS

The readers of the AMERICAN will regret to learn of the illness and death of Miss Skipton's father. Her friends wish to extend their sympathy in her sad affliction.

A letter recently received from Robert Davis discloses the fact that he is now living in Seattle, Wash., where he has employment and is getting along nicely. He says that there are many ex-pupils of Chemawa in Seattle and Tacoma and that they are doing well. Robert looks back with pleasure to his school days at Chemawa.
