Lillie Burns and Mattie Hayden are learning an Indian song from Martha Miller.—N. J.

We are learning how to sing "My Country 'tis of Thee," in the second grade.—J. H.

Lena Ashue is doing nicely on her mandolin. She plays some lovely pieces.—M. H.

Ernest David is drawing a very pretty butterfly for the wall in the third grade school room.—A. S.

The little girls are catching bees and keeping them in boxes. They are very bad to do it I think.—T. H.

We are looking forward to an entertainment to be given by the Excelsior Literary Society next week.—A. M.

We are glad to see Clara Robinson enter the mandolin club. She took her first lesson Friday evening.—M. M.

Stanley Pedro, the quartermaster of Mitchell Hall, has made some improvements in his room. He is a very industrious boy.

Mary Gregory received a very nice letter from her cousin which contained a nice picture that pleases her very much.—E. M.

The third grade is learning the song, "The Star Spangled Banner," and after we sing, we all give the first yell, which makes it very nice.

Laura Wilson is practicing on her banjo. We hope to see her join the string instrument club as she plays quite well for a beginner.—E. N.

The eighth grade planted their flower beds yesterday and we hope that the seeds are good. Some of the seeds were planted two weeks ago and are not up yet.—M. S.

Maggie Jerry, Hazel Butler and Lena Ashue gave us some very nice music on their instruments Sunday afternoon. Their music was enjoyed by their friends who were present.—E. N.

I received a letter from my friend, Ethel Coburn, in Dairy, Ore., in which she says she hopes to be back at Chema-wa in the near future. She is going to school and she is in the 7th grade. All her friends wish her success.—C. T. R.

The ancestor of every action is thought.—Emerson.

No man is so prosperous that he can afford to dispense with the rest of mankind.—Ex.
