

INDUSTRIAL NOTES

Mike Olsen is doing some fine plowing on the farm.

The wagon makers are busy repairing old chairs this week.

Ernest David is doing fine work trimming the hedges.

James Smith is getting along fine in the carpenter shop.

The gardeners are through hoeing the young onions back of the school building.

The plumbers are hard at work nowadays, laying the sewer pipe to the new gymnasium.

The harnessmakers mowed their lawn Monday morning. It looks very nice in the front of the shops.

Thos. Spedis, an apprentice of the blacksmith shop, is doing excellent work ironing the wagons.

Mrs. Doherty and detail of boys have just finished mending a big pile of coats and trousers for the occupants of Brewer Hall.

Robert Cameron takes delight in leveling the baseball ground and the track, which shows that he is an athlete on and off the field.

The blacksmiths cut threads on the iron rods for the gym and also made lots of iron washers for them and put them in place in the gym.

The sewing room girls have finished the McBride Hall girls' summer uniforms and have made the uniforms for the first company of small girls.

The wagon makers are busy repairing chairs. Philip Talbot is quite a hand at the business, while John Mason is a specialist on stools.

The blacksmiths finished ironing off a small farm wagon last week, and they will soon have several others finished and ready for the painters.

Academic

We now have recess at 10:30 and 2:45 for 15 minutes.

The Juniors and Seniors are looking forward to a hard final examination.

Lizzie Beaver is teaching Spelling and Reading in the 5th Normal this week.

The Progressive Literary Society is going to give an entertainment in the near future.

The Nonpareil Literary Society has disbanded for the year and will give their reception Friday evening.

Boys and girls must be more prompt in returning to the school building after recess. Be ready when the recall bell rings.

Boys and girls who ask to be excused from school on every possible occasion can not expect to pass the final test next month.

The flower seeds which the seventh grade planted some time ago are beginning to show themselves since the warm weather has come.

The yard around the academic building is looking very clean and neat. The flower beds are well cared for and there are no scraps of paper to be seen. Frank Madison picks up every scrap around the building and takes pride in the good appearance of the grounds.

The Normal room is doing fine work. Vernie Cliffe, Margaret Lowry, Loulin Brewer and Calvin Darnell have been very successful in the 5th Normal and Belle Dillstrom, Louise Murray, Tillie Souvenir and Katie Brewer have been just as successful in the 6th Normal.
